DEDICATION

Sister Lucille McKillop, President

The 1984 Regina Maris staff proudly dedicates this yearbook to Sister Lucille McKillop. Her achievement, enthusiasm and commitment to Salve Regina College is unique. This marks Sister Lucille's tenth year at Salve Regina College. We thank her for her service. She will always be that special person in our one shining moment.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

To the Graduates of 1984:

My heartiest congratulations to the '84 seniors, whose college years are highlighted in this handsome volume.

I was particularly struck by your yearbook theme--One Shining Moment. One thinks of Camelot and the Arthurian legends of chivalry and romance. Looking back, your fleeting college years might be crystalized as "one shining moment," but in truth yours was no fairy-tale existence. Yet neither was life in the authentic medieval stories.

Readers of the original Arthurian tales know that they embody a profoundly sane vision of life. These legends reflected a deep reverence for moral ideals. Honor, valor, benevolence, fidelity, chastity were almost sacred terms. They symbolized the ennoblement of the human spirit. They were not yet debased by the mindless cynicism current today.

But apart from the magical motifs, these early authors faced up to human reality. They knew life as an inevitable compound of joy and sorrow, laughter and tears. They vividly depicted mortal folly, treachery, anguish and death. Still, the timeless element in these stories is that the idealism remains intact. Each person looked toward being the best self. Frail man might falter, but the central vision of moral heroism is not corrupted or trivialized.

We trust that your years at Salve have strengthened and matured your youthful idealism and commitment to a just society. You realize that your own nobility of purpose remains an uncommon value. We live in a world that glamorizes ignoble attitudes that range from greed and selfish ambition to a callous disregard for the dignity of human life.

Hold fast to your ideals--like those rare and splendid knights to whom the terms justice, loyalty, integrity were not academic concepts but daily demands. And may the shining moment of Salve burn ever bright in illuminating you down the long pathways of life.

Yours sincerely,

Sister Lucille McKillop

Presented here in the preceding pages are the faculty of Salve Regina College. A more diverse group than the curriculum they carry out, they range from the Sisters of Mercy and Christian Brothers to priests, sisters of other orders and lay people. They are of varied backgrounds, some have been educators for years while others are professional people who share their experiences in their fields.

Each faculty member is qualified, not just in education or expertise, for without exception, they share a commitment to us expressed in preparation, patience and a willingness to share in our struggle to learn.

We appreciate the dedication and professionalism of the faculty. Without them, we would not be able to set goals, for there would be no standards of education; we would not be able to achieve those goals, and we would have fewer memories of shining moments to carry us through our futures.

Mr. Kiernan welcomes "the ailing professor" to Mardi Gras.

Staffs Serve Student Needs

This year, College Health Services welcomed the addition of Maggie Leonard, R.N. to the existing staff of Mary Kay Connell, C.P.N.P. and Terence Mulvaney, M.D. and honored Sr. M. Rosalind Kiernan in her retirement. Located for the second year in North Hall, they offer a complete range of services while remaining committed to the philosophy that a comprehensive education includes learning how to establish and maintain proper health care patterns.

Also located in North Hall, John Rok, M.Ed., M.A. and Jan Gordon, M.S.W. assist students with adjusting to college, clarifying values, managing time more carefully, and improving communication skills. They accomplish these tasks through individual and group counseling and special programs.

More Than Media

Question: Where can the average, everyday Salve student enter the glamorous world of the silver screen?

Answer: The Instructional Technology Center (better known as I.T.C.) in Angelus Hall.

Yes, you too can challenge such greats as Henry Fonda and Bette Davis. Behind the camera of every star lurks a talented cameraman you say? No problem. Joe O'Dea can focus, hocus and pocus until the most crooked of hooked noses looks as cute as a button. After all, Shakespeare was not kidding when he said, "All the world's a stage . . ."

And if you want to know more about Shakespeare, or Chaucer or Art Buchwald for that matter, all you have to do is stroll next door from the I.T.C. to Salve's McAuley Library. No, this is not your common establishment for lending books. Salve's Library is adorned with chandeliers and a staircase that can stir almost any dormant imagination.

Oh, it has lots of books, too . . .

Mr. Robert Kulo

Experienced Trouble- Shooters

The Residence Office is the place to go when you want a room change because your roommate snores during every hour of the day. It's the place to hear Director Steven Painchaud say, "Come in; sit down and let me help you." It's the place to go when coaches Marcus Jannitto and Paul Gamache call you in for the Big League. It's the place to go where Sr. Jane and Sr. Consilii open their doors and hustle you in to solve the problem which you prompted — throwing the T.V. set out the window on a dateless Saturday night. It's where you go to complain about your R.A. who is actually a saint in disguise. Secretary Jean Cooney ushers you in and reminds you to "use the other door!"

Above all, we value our Residence Office. Located in Miley Hall Basement, it "serves to provide a residential atmosphere conducive to academic excellence." And they're there to give a helping hand.

People in the Know

College Activities located in Miley Hall serves as the nerve center to the activities planned here at Salve. Headed by Joan Whalen and members of the student body, activities range from mixers to film festivals — even a worst film festival! The office also assists class officers planning their activities and supervises class elections. College Activities throws lifelines like providing last minute shopping trips to Fall River and New York at holiday time. Their new office with its thick pile carpet, hot coffee and warm smiles is always a nice place to escape to see "What's Cooking at Salve."

Mr. Joseph Souza

Under the direction of Mr. Joseph Souza the Building, Grounds and Maintenance Departments are responsible for keeping the physical plant of our campus in smooth and running order. Often we became used to our surroundings and took them for granted. Sometimes we did not notice the many people working to make our campus as beautiful as it is, but if they hadn't worked so hard then surely we would have wondered why. Sometimes in pursuit of convenience we may have walked across a lawn instead of on the sidewalk, dropped a piece of litter in the gutter, or we complained about the heat in a dorm at the very same time someone was working hard to fix the problem. But in the end we did appreciate the hard work and dedication of the men and women in these departments, for surely without them our campus would not have been our kingdom — the place where we found our shining moments.

Seilers

Under the direction of Mr. Ken Cardone the cafeteria, located in Miley Hall, served not only three meals a day, but as a popular place for a social scene on campus. Many an hour was spent by students in the cafeteria catching up on the latest news from friends and making plans for school and weekend activities. In addition the food service provided a number of special events, including the Christmas Holly Dinner, exam survival kits, make-your-own-sundae nights, and even a deli night.

Academic Resource Center

Under the direction of Miss Diane Caplin, the newly formed Academic Resource Center (ARC), created from the combination of Tutoring and Academic Advising, serves as a place where students can go to receive a wide variety of services. From checking on one's status towards graduation or signing up for extra in a certain subject, the ARC was a busy place this year. With its helpful, friendly staff and students assistants, the ARC is a nice place to go.

Student assistant Kathy Shatraw with Director Diane Caplin

Security

Under the direction of Mr. Wayne Carfile, the Security Department serves to aid and safeguard the students, faculty, and staff of the College who study, live or work on campus. The department is also responsible for securing all campus buildings and facilities and enforcing parking regulations. Constant radio contact is maintained between a dispatcher and officers assigned to foot and vehicular patrol. The dispatcher can be reached any time by phone. The dispatcher will also summon city police and fire department assistance in emergency situations.

Campus Ministry

Campus Ministry is an apostolate to the entire community. It is an essential aspect of the college life because it flows from and concerns itself primarily with the very nature of the College — fostering and strengthening a community of faith, proclaiming the Gospel and its values, celebrating the life of the community, calling all its members to a deeper awareness and experience of their responsibilities in service to one another.

Students at the College have the opportunity to be actively involved in the ministerial roles of the Church implemented through Vatican II.

Vacations and breaks dictate that Ash Wednesday is the only major holy day that occurs while classes are in session; therefore, we celebrate it and the arrival of Lent with two truly magnificent productions!

1983 SALVE REGINA DANCE 20 HOUR DANCE FOR

"Over hours" is hard to define, specifying of college students. With nurses on route to clinical at six a.m. and theatre majors clearing up after a late-night production, it's been possible for many roommates to share a "single." While Ochre Point Avenue appeared to be a wide boulevard on Thursday evenings, it resembled a parking lot at odd hours—like some Saturdays, with such erratic schedules.

Under we made an effort to get together for dances when studies could be put off. Holiday celebrations were usually popular, but dances and parties served to boost involvement and create some "shining moments."

COLLEGE ACTIVITIES

Happy Apparitions

"Eeeek! Who was that?" Every year at the masquerade party there are crazier — and more frightening — costumes! This year, the cavernous hall of Carey Mansion added spectacle to the specters. The party is a time when the little kid in us comes out; we dress in the traditional garb of witches, goblins, ghosts and more. For one night in October, we can be anything or anyone we want to be. Before the autumn sets in November or a time of peace and Christian renewal arrives with Christmas, we make one bright, spooky, shining moment.

"Doctor, Will I live?" "If you get your hand off my knee!"

Before returning "home," E.T. dropped in.

Singers Usher in Holidays

Christmas in Newport is unlike Christmas anywhere else, and Salve does its part to help make this holiday a special one.

On December 10 and 11, Ochre Court was the location for people to gather from far and near to join in the holiday spirit. The combined sound of the three choruses, Madrigals, Concert Choir and Women's Chorus, were the evening's entertainment. The singers brought delight to every audience member with each song they sang. The audience became enthralled with the program and joined with the singers in the holiday spirit, singing along to familiar tunes.

People left the concert feeling invigorated, anxiously waiting for Christmas Day to arrive so the mood that this program set would not die. The concert may have lasted for "one shining moment," but it will live in the hearts and souls of the people who attended until next year's program.

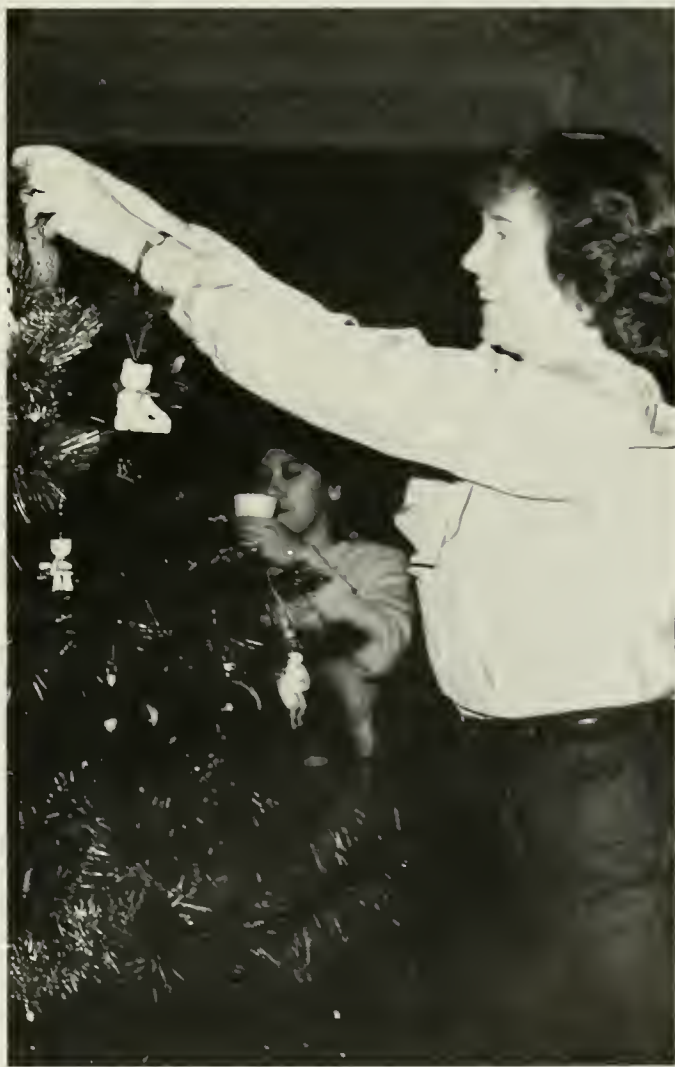

Tricia Farley adds a shining moment to the tree decorating ceremony as part of the students' Christmas week festivities.

Chris MacLellan joins in the singing at the students' Christmas celebration.

Conductor Brother James Loxham works as hard at every performance as the Newport College Singers.

Mardi Gras Madness

Sprung from Winter Studies

March roared in at Salve; students just couldn't keep still. The Madri Gras on March 3 revived the New Orleans tradition of Shrove Tuesday celebrations. Our own version featured costumes every bit as grand as those of the Old South. As students paraded through the foyer of Ochre Court they were handed masks, though many students showed up incognito to puzzle and confuse friends.

Even though a mid-semester break meant that many students weren't in Newport over the St. Patrick's Day weekend, holiday celebrations continued in stride. The choruses of the college presented "Ireland the Land of Song" on March 10 and 11. Sr. Lucille emceed the program which opened with a performance of the national anthems of Eire and the United States. The program then slowed to a selection of ballads performed by the Madrigal Singers, a double quartet, and several soloists. Mairead Doherty played the Irish harp, and a group of Irish dancers added sparkle to the Great Hall. It seemed that spring was just around the corner.

Painting the Town

The Cars told us to "Let the Good Times Roll," and who were we to argue? So we proceeded to "Dance All Night" at Salve's Christmas and spring (senior) Semi-Formals. The Contenders and Charisma, respectively, provided the times; students provided the fun.

We ate, drank, danced and were pretty merry surrounded by the history and splendor of Ochre Court. Only Salve knows for sure what marble floors can do for the art of dance.

Gail and her date could have danced all night.

Sharon and her beau go casual at the end of a great evening.

Dance to the Heart

In keeping with the spirit of all Salve activities, the 1983 Dance Marathon satisfied many expectations. The main goal of the evening was to raise money to benefit the Heart Association. Students gathered sponsors from the Salve community, and when the event was completed, a sizeable sum was acquired for a great cause. Another purpose of the evening was to get students involved. The process of gaining sponsors and dancing in the twenty-hour marathon gave students the opportunity to meet their classmates, work for the good of others and have fun on campus. Having fun was yet another expectation of the event. There was an abundance of good dance music, friends to share the excitement and the exhaustion with, and refreshments to keep the dancers going. The students who participated, plus all those involved in organizing and running the Dance Marathon are to be congratulated for a successful, beneficial and enjoyable event.

There's No Stopping Us!

Nurses Looking Ahead

Student involvement took a variety of forms at the college this year. Nursing students found the Nursing Career Day, November 30, of great help as they pursue their vocations. Juniors and seniors looking forward to graduation were able to investigate job opportunities in their fields, while all nursing students had the chance to learn about different avenues open to them, from hospital representatives and visiting nurses alike.

On a snowy evening here in Newport, enthusiastic students piled into the Boys' Club for the Faculty-Student Basketball Game. Though the faculty receive an "A" for effort, the students pulled off a victory in the final minute of the game.

EDITORIAL: Student Apathy At Salve Regina College

By our mere presence as students at an institution of higher education, we have indicated that we wish to continue to learn, grow, and develop intellectually. How can we achieve any of these goals if we have not learned to carry our education outside the classroom? Are we willing to let our education stop at the 15 hours we spend in class each week?

Decade of Success

The Irish National Anthem brings a warm smile to Sr. Lucille's face.

Sigma Phi Sigma honored Sr. Lucille and was represented by Sally Willis, President.

How do students, administration, faculty and staff honor the College President for ten years of devout leadership and marvelous progress? During "President's Week" (Nov. 27-Dec. 3), Sr. Lucille McKillop's service was graciously recognized. On Sunday, campus and other Religions convened at Ochre Court Chapel for Mass celebrated by The Most Reverend Louis E. Gelineau, Bishop of Providence.

On Monday of "President's Week," Sr. Lucille cut the ribbon and officially opened the McKillop Art Gallery at Mercy Hall. Students greeted Sr. Lucille in Ochre Court's Great Hall on Tuesday. The presidents of Sigma Phi Sigma, Student Life Senate and Student Academic Senate made short presentations, the Concert Choir performed, and a reception followed.

On Wednesday, the college staff and administration sang their version of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore" for "Salve's Captain." At an academic convocation on Thursday, the faculty honored Sr. Lucille. "President's Week" culminated in the annual Governor's Ball held Saturday evening in Ochre Court. Governor J. Joseph Garrahy honored Sr. Lucille and presented her with a proclamation.

Students danced and sunbathed to the sounds of High Times and The Shake this year during Spring Weekend. Also included in the two day celebration was a "Game Day" and the ever-popular Spring Formal. Both held on Saturday, the former included a dunking machine featuring some of the students' favorite staff and faculty members while the latter event witnessed some two hundred couples dance to the sound of Brass Attack.

Miley Lobby . . . O'Hare Lounge . . . the Boathouse . . . these are the gathering places for Salve students, to unwind, to share news. This year, there was plenty happening. Many organized events which united the college community began in these centers, with the ideas and impressions of the students. It was from here that the concerned officers of student organizations took the initiative. Their plans, with the support of the student body and the administration made life at college a richer, more memorable experience.

Could East meet West? Could the Student Life Senate and Student Academic Senate work toward their respective goals, yet meet and collaborate when in the past they hadn't? Yes, they could, and this year they proved. So it was a tough year for both senates, since dissipating enthusiasm had to be recharged at a time when the College was expanding and experiencing "growing pains."

Together, the senates pulled it off. The Dance Marathon drew in funds for the Heart Association, and Robert Clary spoke on his experiences of the Holocaust to a sold-out lecture in the T.B. room. Two leadership workshops brought together the SLS, SAS and Sigma Phi Sigma as well.

This year's organizations should be commended for their efforts and achievements leading to a solid future.

Visible Service

Sigma Phi Sigma is the national honor society of colleges sponsored by the Sisters of Mercy. It recognizes students who demonstrate scholarship as well as fidelity and service to the College. Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors are inducted each spring into the Salve Regina College chapter. This year, Sigma Phi Sigma members hosted a variety of College events including: "President's Week" festivities, the Atwood Lecture Series, the Newport College Singers' Concerts, the Newport Institute, Career Day, the Governor's Ball, the Parents' Weekend dance, Honors and Awards Day and Commencement activities.

Acting on Talent

The quarters were cramped; "back-stage" was a corridor outside the ceramics studio through which guests filled to enter the Little Theatre. Everyone, however, was enthusiastic about the one-acts presented in March, "Aria da Capo" and "Over-tones," the audience, the casts and especially the directors, Ellen Toole and Doug Bowden. These first student directors represent the growth which has taken place within the Newport College Theatre Company this year, beginning with the fall musical, "Stop the World I Want to Get Off." Though the quarters have remained the same, an influx of new members has been combined with the resources of many talented people in areas such as voice and dance. In April, the Theatre Company hosted a dozen high school casts participating in the New England High School Drama Festival. Recent spring productions were "Pigeons" and "Zoo Story."

Thousands Strong

Though in the words of one officer, "We're only a very small chapter of a very large organization," the student chapter of the Council for Exceptional Children has become one of the major organizations on campus. It serves as a professional organization for Special Education majors and plans activities and advocacy for those with special needs. Under Co-Presidents Suzanne Landers and Joyce Pfezenmaier, the chapter had an especially productive year. Holiday events included the annual Halloween party, the making of Christmas ornaments, and an Easter egg hunt on the grounds of Wakehurst.

In April, twelve members of CEC, along with advisor Kitty Rok, attended the International Council for Exceptional Children Conference in Washington, D.C. A week of professional seminars and exhibitions gave the group a fresh look at what is being done to help those with special needs.

Resident Action

October 2 was move-in day for Salve resident students as pickups, vans and packed subcompacts converged on the dormitories and apartments of Ochre Point recently vacated by America's Cup teams. The midnight oil burned as new roommates got acquainted, and old friends put the finishing touches on the double, triple or quad they had longed for — or settled for — since last spring's room draw.

Miley women formed a special camaraderie as they adjusted to college and living above the cafeteria and security. Other residents were united by dorm parties, movies, dorm masses and the ever-necessary fire drills, not to mention the ocean winds which drove power out and made the heating of old mansions virtually impossible. March brought storm after storm until spring finally came, and students set off to sunbathe before studying for finals. With summer almost upon us before classes let out, we found that it was a great year, after all, to be in Newport.

The Salve sports organization had an unstoppable season. As the college expanded, athletics came to the fore for the recreation it offered students, the opportunity to do something besides study, to become part of a group, to represent the College, to challenge oneself, to compete, to excel. The dedication of the Athletic Department, led by Brother Michael Reynolds, focused on each student involved in sports. This year, of the teams and individuals, there were some real newsmakers.

Men's Varsity Soccer

The 1983 season held many changes for the men's soccer team. Under the direction of new coach, Marc Jannitto, the team played its toughest schedule ever, ending the season with a 2-10-1 record. The spirit of the season, however, was not reflected in the record. The early return program, a successful indoor soccer program, and several overtime games contributed to an exciting year for the team and for Salve athletics in general.

Salve women tie three times

WELLESLEY, Mass. — The Salve Regina College women's soccer team opened its season with three scoreless ties in the Bahson College Soccer Jamhoree Sunday.

Playing a pair of 20-minute scrimmages against Stonehill and Babson and a 40-minute contest against Wheaton, the Newporters displayed strong defensive work. Kathy Amoroso, Wendy Roberts, Chris Marescalchi and Shelia Smith turned in good efforts, with Gretchen Chiasson superb in goal.

Eloise Evans

Evans leads Salve runners

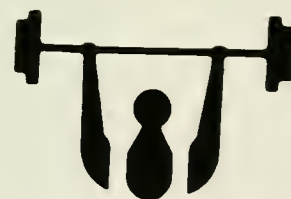

PROVIDENCE — Eloise Evans of Salve Regina College was the outstanding woman performer Tuesday night in the Ocean State Indoor Track Championships at the Olney-Margolies Athletic Center.

She won the 800 meters in 2:16.5 and was second in the 1,500 meters with 4:41.

Gerry Willis

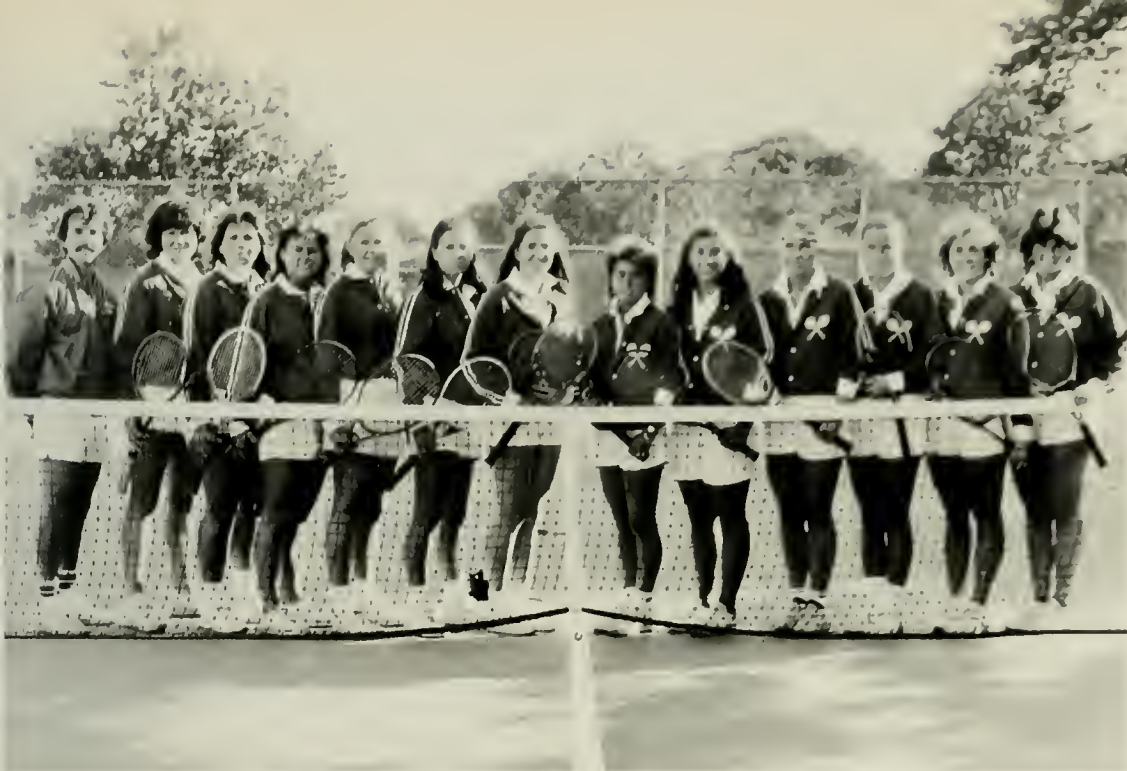

With a shy smile, Gerry Willis admits that he really doesn't train as he should. Any training that he does takes place at the local YMCA. He competes four or five times a year. It's not what you'd expect from a champion weightlifter, but it works for Gerry; he holds the NCAA New England light-heavyweight title, in addition to having won the US Open. He adds these to his past awards including twelve state and nine New England records.

T y l a T h i b o d e a u

A dozen or so Salve students donned figure skates and slipped onto the ice to march like wooden soldiers. The crowd at St. George's rink in Middletown included faculty and friends. On the ice, the skaters looked alternately confident and nervous in their finale, testament to the inexperience of many of them. Yet the program concluded without a mishap and the audience loved the show. The person behind all of this, costumes and choreography alike, was Tyla Thibodeau. Tyla has been skating competitively for years. This year she brought the skill and grace of the sport of ice skating to the College community through the outstanding Christmas and Spring Skating Club performances.

Salve women win meet

NEW LONDON — Eloise Evans won both the 1500 and 400 meters runs as she led Salve Regina College to an 18-9 track victory over Connecticut College Monday.

The Salve men, represented by only four athletes because several had mid-term examinations, won the 4 by 100 relay. But lack of numbers told and they were buried in the triangular men's meet.

Coast Guard Academy rolled up 113 points. Connecticut College was a distant second with 24 points and Salve managed 18.

Evans' times were 4:48.3 in the 1500 and 51.7 seconds in the 400.

Salve's Mary Nunes won the 100 meters in 14 seconds flat.

Other scorers for the Newport College were Angie Brady second in the 100 in 15.4 seconds, Dina Perdich, sixth in the 1500 in 6:18 and Sara Coriere, sixth in the same event in 6:38.

Salve's foursome of Christopher Holloway, Matt Woermer, Thomas Cicatiello and Scott Didniha was clocked in 50.8 seconds in winning the 4 by 100 relay.

Holloway won the 100 in 11.7. Cicatiello was third at 50.73 in the 1500. Didniha fourth with a throw of 107 feet, 8 inches in the discus, and Woermer scored in four events — second in the high jump (5-8), fourth in the triple jump (39-4) and also the 110 hurdles (20.6) and fifth in the long jump (18-3.2).

Salve romps in softball finale

NEWPORT — The Salve Regina College women's softball team ended a winning season with a flourish Saturday, blasting Albertus Magnus, 37-5, at Freebody Park.

The Newporters finished at 9-6 for their first winning campaign ever. Salve pounded 28 hits and had 14 runs in the first inning. Kelly LaDucer had four hits, scored six times and had 5 RBI. Allison Hoffman added three hits and five RBI and Mary Ann Martin belted a three-run homer.

Mary Beth Plaehn won her fifth game without a loss, hurling a one-hitter over the four innings she worked. Plaehn also had two hits.

Salve splits doubleheader

NEWPORT — Salve Regina's Chris Holloway spread eight Coast Guard Academy hits in winning 2-1 Saturday at Cardines Field. But the New London team took the nightcap, 6-1.

The Newport college won the first game by scoring two runs in the initial inning. John Shea walked, but was forced at second base on Dan Zuccarini's roller. Mark Zarek, Tom Hole and Grady Yarrow then blasted singles.

Doug Meuders banged a triple and single, driving in three runs, for the Guardsmen in the second game.

Zarek, who clouted two hits, singled home Yarrow with Salve's only run in the sixth inning.

Salve's record is 10 and 7.

The intramural program at Salve Regina College complements the academic program by providing students with organized recreational and sports activities. The program gives students the opportunity to develop lifetime sports skill while participating in wholesome competition, and allows for constructive use of leisure time.

1983-84 Intramural Staff

The 1983-84 Intramural Program was most successful as shown by this year's statistics over 50% of the student body was involved in 6 sports; 57 separate teams participated including 6 flag football teams, 12 men's and women's basketball teams, 22 men's and women's volleyball teams, and 17 coed softball teams; over 32 people ran in two foot-races; and 68 students and staff competed in the Salve Regina College Open Racquetball Tournament. All together, over 310 separate games were played during the year.

Take a look at the photos on the following pages. They're not the youthful, untried faces of our freshmen, but of inexperienced young persons familiar to Newport and unacquainted with the college. These photos reflect part of the most arduous and exciting years of our lives, during which we studied and labored with an intensity which a secure environment will permit no respect for fellow classmates. The friendships formed cannot be portrayed, but the personal growth each of us has experienced here is evident in the photographs. We are the same as we were four years ago, but we have grown, we have learned.

SENIOR YEAR

If I had my senior year to do all over again, I would try to make more mistakes next time. I would relax, take more chances, take more trips and talk to more people. I would visit more mansions, walk more cliffwalks and watch more sunsets. I would pick more daisies and collect more seashells. I would eat more icecream and less cottage cheese. I would have more real problems and less imaginary ones. I would hold more hands, give more hugs and sing louder. I would try to live one day at a time instead of jumping into the future. I would play hookey more, go on more picnics and most of all I would laugh more.

The time will be so short, the laughter will bring tears to your eyes.

There we'll stand, holding hands, one more hug, one more kiss, then goodbye

How we have changed in four years!!

The Meaning of Friendship

I love you, not only for what you are, but for what I am when I am with you. I love you, not only for what you have made of yourself, but for what you are making of me. I love you for the part of me that you bring out, when I am with you, alone or with others. I love you, for putting your hand into my heart, and passing over all the foolish, weak things that you can't help dimly seeing there, and for drawing out into the light all the beautiful belongings that no one else had looked quite far enough to find. I love you because you are helping me to make my life not a tavern, but a temple, helping me find space for God. I love you, because you have done more than any creed could have done to make me good by your presence and more than any fate could have done to make me happy. You have done it perhaps without a touch, without a word, and maybe without a sign, you have done it by being yourself. Perhaps that is what being a friend means. I love you.

A Wish for Members of the Class of 1984 from the Class of 1985.

Commencement Ball

Evenings like this come along only a few times during our lives. The Commencement Ball gave seniors and their dates the opportunity to dress in elegant gown or tuxedo and drive up to the front entry of Ochre Court, only to be met by a valet. They and their friends were served cocktails and a filet mignon dinner in the Library or State Dining Room. It was an evening to be savored — dancing didn't begin until almost 10:30. Then, the Great Hall was packed with couples romancing to favorites such as "We've Got Tonight," or rocking to the band's rendition of "Jump" or "Footloose." The open terrace doors gave many couples passage to the timeless retreat where the sound of the band seemed more distant than the cool splash of rainwater. In the quiet we felt a part of history — and we knew it was our own.

It was that kind of day as students dashed across the parking lot and into St. Mary's, but the torrential rains which flooded New England couldn't hamper the dignity of the Mass or of the Hooding. B.A. graduates received blue and white lined hoods trimmed with white, while B.S. graduates received gold-trimmed hoods in the centuries-old ceremony. The music was provided by the College Singers and enhanced the solemnity throughout the morning. The principal celebrant was the Most Reverend Daniel A. Cronin, Bishop of Fall River. Sr. Lucille addressed the class, calling them to action marked by wisdom and compassion. It was Sr. Sheila who predicted that the rain would end by the following day. As it turned out, the score was: Sr. Sheila — '84, Mother Nature — 0.

Commencement

Sunshine warmed the blue and white tent which spread over the graduates and their guests. The 34th commencement reflected our years at Salve — it was a personal one. Sr. Lucille went on a trip down memory lane and recalled warm memories of the past four years. After, graduates were called onstage to receive their degrees from the College President, who knew most of them by name. Dignitaries included Senator Claiborne Pell, State Senator Robert McKenna and Mayor Patrick Kirby. They all stressed the importance of the College to the city and the state and remarked on Salve's growth. The changes that the school underwent from 1980 the graduates found reflected in themselves, and they left better prepared to face the challenges ahead of them.

Before you drift to sleep upon your cot,

Dear Reader,

Someone said that putting together a yearbook is fun. There were times when I could have strongly disputed that — yet in the long run I did have fun. The publication of the 1984 Regina Maris was indeed a challenge for me and the staff, but I can now look upon this volume with pride and satisfaction. The production of this yearbook ended up being, for me, part of my shining moment at Salve Regina College.

The staff and I worked with the theme of "One Shining Moment" because we thought it best reflected everyone's experiences at Salve Regina. We felt that everyone had at least one moment during his college career in which he did something outstanding or something wonderful happened to him. For some, this shining moment may have only been a day, a week, a month, a year, or even four years. No matter the length of time, it was still his one shining moment.

The idea for the theme was taken from the play Camelot. In a way our lives were much like those in the fictitious kingdom of King Arthur. We all became knights of a sort, led by the faculty and administration to seek knowledge, peace and justice through honored learning and valuable experiences. Ochre Court, O'Hare, McAuley and the other buildings on campus became our fortresses. While we revelled in the security of our campus, we were careful to keep an ever-watchful eye on the world outside of our kingdom.

I know that many of you will use the 1984 Regina Maris to show that outside world — friends and relatives — what your life at Salve was like. That is why the staff and I tried our best to select pictures and write copy that best represented the year.

At times I felt much pressure on me and more than once I felt like throwing in the towel. But I had taken on the task voluntarily and once begun, I knew I could not disappoint anyone. There is a saying that goes something like: "If you have tried to do something and failed, you are vastly better off than if you tried to do nothing and succeeded." I tried to produce a good, classic yearbook, and although many times I thought I would fail, I feel I did succeed. Of course, you are the final judge as you read this message with the book in your hands.

All I ask is that you remember that a yearbook is not as easy to produce as it looks. It not only involves taking pictures and writing copy, but the merchandising and financing of the book, as well as designing layouts and proofing materials.

A yearbook also requires the valuable and extra effort of many individuals to whom I now turn to express my gratitude.

Barbara Sylvia, though very busy with the new position that she was appointed to, still managed to keep an eye on me and was very helpful in laying the groundwork for the book in the early fall. Her secretary, Carmen Mottinger, was always available to help me when I needed it and never forgot to do anything I asked, despite her already heavy workload.

Christine Eagan is one of the most talented photographers I have ever met and without her half of the yearbook would not exist. She was always available, it seemed, to cover major events, and always had contact sheets back to me within days. Her work is excellent and helped raise the quality of pictures in the book.

Another very talented photographer is Suzanne Landers. As editor she was responsible for the other half of the book and for organizing a very good staff. Suzanne didn't have to take on the job she did — she already had many other organizations to give her attention to — but without her I don't know how I would have remained as calm as I did.

Rick Goff and Reinette Speare in Public Relations were helpful to me in supplying some pictures to fill in the empty spaces.

All of my editors were indispensable. Each made a significant contribution to the yearbook and with the help of staff members made the individual sections unique and good looking. Katheryn LaPorte's clever choices of words make the copy a pleasure to read. Michelle Morency was diligent in the tedious Senior Class section but it paid off — the class never looked so good! Jill Taylor's design and ideas for the College Activities section were innovative and aesthetically pleasing. Katherine Aldrich and Teresa Silvia, despite their editing inexperience, ended up producing two very well done sections. Cheryl Anastasio was responsible for soliciting ads — not an easy task in our inflation-ravaged economy. To all my editors — I am deeply indebted to you! Sorry about the times things seemed unorganized. We pulled it off!

There are also many people who helped in little ways that even they are unaware of. Like Susan Willis who took endless messages for me, or Ellen Toole who helped me identify some pictures — even their help has not gone unnoticed. All of the little help added up. So, to all who I came in contact with in some way regarding the yearbook — thank you!

Thanks must also be extended to Susan Strauss, the representative from Herff Jones. She was very organized and offered many great ideas.

Most of all I want to thank my best friend Cindy Santolli. Without her love, support, and encouragement it might have been a tiring and long second semester. Instead she helped me overcome the obstacles I encountered and the discouragement I felt along the way. We all need someone to lean on and I am glad my someone was her.

To the graduates of 1984, I wish you future success and happiness. I hope you enjoy these lasting memories of our shining moments as much as I did bringing them to you.

"Good-bye" is not an ending
when you know that people care,
For miles may come between you but warm thoughts are always there ...
"Good-bye" is not an ending
but a different start for you,
A time for making brand-new friends and seeing dreams come true ...
"Good-bye" is not an ending,
for you'll find along life's way,
Within your heart you'll always have a part of yesterday.

*There is a place I called my own
Where I stood by the sea,
And looked beyond the things I'd known,
And dreamt that I might be free.
Like the bird above the trees
Gliding gently on the breeze,
I wished that all my life I'd be without a care,
and flying free!*

*But life is not a distant sky
Without a cloud, without rain
And I can never hope
That I can travel on without pain.
Time goes swiftly on its way
All too soon we've lost today
I cannot wait for skies of blue or dream so long that life is through.*

*So life's a song that I must sing,
A gift of love I must share,
And when I see the joy it brings,
My spirits soar through the air.
Like that bird up in the sky,
Life has taught me how to fly,
For now I know what I can be —
And now my heart is flying free!*
